Getting to Zero: Developing and Implementing a Safe Patient Handling &
Movement Program
Wednesday, October 14, 2009
10:00 – 11:00 am CDT

Every day, nurses suffer debilitating and often career-ending and life-altering injuries from repeatedly lifting and moving patients. In a recent survey by the American Nurses Association, nearly 60% of nurses indicated that they have considered leaving the nursing profession because they fear a disabling on-the-job injury. 12% of nurses actually leave the profession each year because they injury their back. So what can healthcare organizations do to prevent patient handling injuries? Join us for this web seminar and learn the steps to create and implement an effective safe patient handling program that will keep your valued caregivers safe.
